This was Amiri Construction's third project for the University and it's most complex to date. The project saw us carry out a first floor extension and refurbishment of this building to provide new practice suites for music students.

A difficult site deep within the campus, adjacent to student accommodation and other teaching blocks meant that close liaison with the University was essential to ensure that existing students were able to still achieve excellence despite our ongoing work.

Successful delivery ensured that we moved onto our fourth project for the University immediately and were able to leave the same team in place.
